Carmel lights up the holiday season

HUNDREDS OF Carmelites came out on a chilly Friday night, Dec. 15th, for the city's annual tree-lighting ceremony held on Ocean Avenue between Carmel Plaza and Devendorf Park. Holiday revelers were regaled with carols from singers in Dickens outfits as well as the Carmel High band, cookies and hot cider from the Carmel Youth Center van, while in one corner of the park a pinata-smashing session was held for the wee ones. Awards were given out to business owners for the best decorated shops and Santa made an appearance to hand out goodies to the children. This year's event was a joint effort between the city, Carmel Business Association and several community groups, including the Carmel Residents Association and Northeast Neighbors. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Enjoyable evening

Dear Editor:

Hats off to Mr. Dick Robins, music instructor at Carmel High School, and his very talented student musicians, for a most enjoyable evening of varied music at Sunset Center.

In their formal dress of tuxedos (long skirts for the "ladies"), the young people exhibited a sophisticated style of professionalism in their poised stage presence as well as in their outstanding renditions. Most of all, they emanated enjoyment and ease in their performances; they appeared to be genuinely pleased to be providing music for an enthusiastic and appreciative audience.

Congratulations to all of them and best wishes for their continued success.

What is Character?

Dear Editor:

The city council, planning commission and informal committees are pondering the important question "What is Carmel's character"?

Based on this question, should a house be big or small, cottage or mansion, one story or two? But houses of themselves have not formed Carmel's character, people have. Carmel has a spirit, a feeling, a way of life all its own. It is an area where people feel and live differently than if they lived anywhere else.

This spirit has come from our history as a town, the people who live and have lived here. People who painted and sculpted and talked and wrote great things and they built their homes to reflect their interests and to disturb this beautiful place as little as possible.

But most importantly has always been our deep spirit of neighborliness and caring for each other. These things have given Carmel its character.

We promote acquisition of parks and open spaces, we protect our beaches, we promote the arts and love our trees. But in the past few years we have allowed certain interests to forever change one of the most important elements that make up Carmel's character — the construction and design of our new homes.

Every home should be judged separately. Does it enhance its neighbors not degrade them? No one should be allowed to build a two-story house in such a way that it shuts out the view and sunshine of a neighbor as was just done in my own neighborhood. This is not the Carmel spirit.

Does it open up vistas not shut them out? Does it lie gently and naturally with the land? Does it respect the wildlife and plant habitat around it? Does it tell you that the designer and the people who live there love Carmel? Does this house strengthen the character of Carmel? Would those who gave Carmel its special spirit be proud?

If it does these things — then it is a good house and the digital numbers, square feet limits and lot setbacks are only secondary.

Power dressing

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to all men who no longer have The Woodpecker Look (Bird) when they appear before an audience. The black coat, the white shirt and a red tie distracts from your facial expression — you have a message, give it, without any part of your clothing screaming for attention.

Remember, always when speaking to an audience in an auditorium, Conference hall, or on television the audience should see: a smile on your lips, a spark in your eye, and not be distracted by a red tie.

Wear red ties to parties or to business, to shop, or work anytime anywhere except when you are a speaker before an audience.

Wasted time

Dear Editor:

Two recent experiences with the Monterey Municipal Court Clerk's office, Aguajito road, really opened my eyes.

First: A close friend of mine received an undated letter postmarked Oct. 11, 1989 from the Municipal Court where she was summoned to appear for jury duty. The letter stated "YOU ARE REQUIRED TO CALL 647-7787 AFTER 5:00 P.M. THE EVENING PRIOR TO THE ABOVE ASSIGNED SUMMONED DATE." There was no above assigned date. Making an inquiry to the court office she received this reply: "Tee-hee-hee, oh! yeah! you are assigned jury duty starting Oct. 30th."

Second: Last week I went to the Municipal Court clerk's office to pay a traffic citation for my daughter. I stood in line behind 15 waiting people. After one hour and 20 minutes, I went to the one of two windows that were supposed to be open. (The open one.) On processing the lady said, "on this I will have to check this with the supervisor."

More waiting. On return she stated "the supervisor is out, have a seat in the hallway, we will call you." No way, I'll call back.

When I left, the waiting line of 20 was backed up to the courthouse entry door. I called the supervisor, she apologized for the delay and said "we are understaffed. The board of supervisors will not allow us to hire additional employees."

From one hour's observation, of the people employed in the clerk's office, my thought was: if you put another person in the office no one could find room to move. Presently they move at two speeds, slow and slower. Thinking of the taxpayers dollar, I would recommend an efficiency expert evaluate the performance capability of the present employees and hire persons capable of giving a day's work for a day's pay. I bet you could reduce the staff by 25 percent and improve operations.

Inhospitable

Dear Editor:

I've been coming to the Asilomar Conference Grounds for math conferences for many years and have always enjoyed dining or shopping in Carmel at some point over the four days that I'm in the area.

This past Sunday I parked in a 30-minute zone to pick up some items in one of my favorite stores, the Game Gallery on Ocean Avenue. After concluding my shopping, I returned to my car to find a $10 parking ticket.

While I did not notice the exact time I parked my car, I do know that I couldn't have been parked for more than 35 minutes. I'm disappointed in this aggressive enforcement on the city's part.

I've resolved to do my shopping and eating elsewhere when I'm in the area from now on. Other localities appear more hospitable from my perspective.

No laughing matter

Dear Editor:

Last Friday I confronted Her Honor the Mayor head-on in the eastbound lane of Sixth Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores. The reason for this confrontation was the westbound lane was completely occupied by trucks making their deliveries.

Of course I deferred to the smiling mayor by partially squeezing between two trucks just enough to let her pass. She was going east and I was attempting to go west around all these trucks.

The situation just described should clearly alert the mayor to the need for a traffic regulation prohibiting tandem parking by delivery trucks in the traffic lanes. This, I'm sure, is a daily occurence in the central commercial district.

Generally speaking, one is not prone to smile after maneuvering around these traffic blockers.

Short-term solutions

Dear Editor:

The new water district board is now considering various short-term improvements to our water supply to mitigate the effects of drought. It is important that whatever actions are taken should not impede the more important goal of building a dam on the Carmel River.

To this end I would advise the board to adhere to three objectives which will enhance the liklihood of completing the dam project: First no monies should unnecessarily be taken from the connection fee fund for short-term projects. Second, staff time which should be concentrated on building the dam should not be wasted on short-term projects. And third, the public's present perception of the urgency of completing the dam should not be diluted by focusing on shorter-term projects other than those which will provide only a little more drought protection until the dam is completed.

These objectives can best be obtained by leaving to the California-American Water Co. the task of bolstering the near-term drought reserves. That corporation has the financial resources, the technical resources and, I think, the obligation to do that. From Cal-Ams report to the Public Utilities Commission in support of its 1988 rate increase application the following can be stated:

1. Cal-Am can deliver in normal years in excess of 22,000 acre feet of potable water each year. Thus there is no need for short-term augmentation in normal years.
2. Cal-Am informed the PUC that it plans to develop additional wells in Seaside to provide 4,000 acre feet of water in normal years and up to 10,000 acre-feet in drought years.
3. Cal-Am informed the PUC that it plans a new well in the upper aquifer in Carmel Valley to produce 2,000 acre feet per year.

I believe a new well near Highway 1 could safely produce another 2,000 acre feet if 1/2 to 1 cubic foot per second were delivered to the lagoon to prevent salinization of the aquifer. Riparian irrigation should also be a requirement near that well. In fact if a well with irrigation had been there now the massive destruction of riparian vegetation presently occurring would have been prevented.

Further, a Cal-Am consultant, James Russell Mount, testified in the PUC hearings on Case 9530 in August of 1986. He stated that the aquifer could be "more efficiently dewatered" in dry years with multiple small-capacity wells than with a few large ones.

One such well between two major wells and near a transmission main to the begonia treatment plant should be tested to determine how much additional capacity could be obtained if this procedure were adopted. The investment to continue such smaller wells between each of Cal-Am's present high-capacity wells could be deferred until the next drought. The wells could be drilled in the river bed as are the two present Scarlett wells.

All that need be done now is to obtain options to drill from the owners of the river bed well sites. Use of the wells should be restricted to drought emergencies. No additional environmental damage would occur since at such times the water table would already be down below the root zones of the riparian vegetation, the river bed would be dry and both susceptible vegetation and young steelhead would be dead or dying.

In addition, the Pebble Beach reclamation plan will initially provide some drought reserves, if completed, without further expenditure by the district.

It should be considered that water developments other than those used in drought years may well result in large expenditures of public money with no net increase in available water. Given the state Department of Fish and Game's public acknowledgement that its only obligation is to maximize benefits to the fisheries, it would be surprising if Fish and Game, the Carmel River Steelhead Association, or others did not request that water from the Carmel Valley aquifer be reduced in amounts equal to new water developed.

The interest of the community would best be served if the water district board were to encourage Cal-Am and the Pebble Beach Co. to proceed post-haste with their plans to increase drought reserves and confine its own major effort to at last get going on the dam.

Rules of the road

Dear Editor:

I'm a local who avidly rides a bicycle through town.

As in the rules of the road, a bicyclist must ride on the right side of the road — but since this area is mostly congested with automobiles and out-of-towners that aren't used to bicycles, it makes it difficult to ride — people carelessly open their car doors without looking first.

I recently had a confrontation like this and almost crashed as someone opened their car door, but we were OK. I called the police station to ask about whose fault it would be when the law is concerned, and they said it's both parties — but it depends on the circumstances.

Now with tinted windows on cars and longer doors, bicycle riders really must be aware. And auto drivers please look before you open your door on these narrow Carmel streets.

Council covers lot of ground on design review

By NANCY HILLS

IT WAS a debatable debate on residential design review, one that bounced from subject to subject and issue to issue.

The Carmel City Council Thursday night covered a lot of territory but appeared to have lost the map, though they eventually arrived at a destination of sorts — to leave design review with the planning commission. For now.

At the planning commission's request, the council also determined it would have a joint meeting with the planning commission on the issue in January.

'The planning commission is trying to do the best it can but taking on the added load of being a design review commission is impossible.'
— Chris Tescher

It was the council's fourth meeting on what Carmel resident Lindsay Hanna told the council is "a favorite topic at Carmel dinner parties" — residential design. But as yet, the council remains unclear on how they even want to discuss the issues.

Each time the councilmembers began to talk about individual criteria, such as should areas beneath the eaves of a house be considered open space, the debate would switch to whether strengthening the ordinances or more intense design review is the means to protect Carmel's ambiance.

The "favorite topic" at Carmel dinner parties Hanna referred to is the reaction many Carmel residents have had to new and remodeled homes in the city that they find loom too large on the lot, are too close to neighboring homes and too suburban, or look too much like expensive tract homes.

Concerned residents feel that if the trend continues, Carmel will lose its own special charm, that of an eclectic village in a forest, and become just another California beach community.

To counteract the problem and address the concerns expressed by residents, the city began to review its residential design codes. The planning commission conducted the first review then passed along its recommendations to the council, which has been debating what, if any, changes to make in the code.

Along with numerical changes versus design review, at the center of the debate is a controversy over the establishment of a commission or committee dedicated to design review, separate from the planning commission. Such commissions exist in Monterey, Pacific Grove and many other California cities.

Most builders and many Carmel residents who protest the new homes advocate some kind of design review committee or commission.

But the planning commission has opposed a separate body for architectural review. The commission sent a memo to the council stating they would prefer conducting preliminary design review through their own design review committee, composed of three commissioners.

The committee discuss designs with the builders and owners, and once reviewed, send the plans on to the full commission.

"In answer to the planning commission's authority, that has been greatly strengthened by the city attorney. In the past we were reluctant to do something to a home on the strength of design review if it met the code," commissioner Fred Keeble told the council.

The city attorney's assertion that the commission may impose changes on a design based on design review, not just the numbers in the code, freed them from those restrictions, Keeble explained.

THE CURRENT commission's design review committee has usually met only when there was a problem with a design.

Until 1985, the committee met monthly to discuss proposed designs with applicants in an informal setting prior to the design going to the commission.

Though the commission appointed in 1986 by then-mayor Clint Eastwood is often cited, or blamed, depending on the point of view, for eliminating the commission's design review committee, it actually was the previous planning commission that voted to do away with the committee.

It was suspended when the entire commission agreed that it would prefer to conduct all reviews of house designs as a single commission.

The next commission, "Eastwood's commission," re-established it as an "ad hoc" group of three commissioners that met to review designs deemed to have problems.

With the recent controversy, the current planning commission has stated that it would like to reinstate the design committee and have it meet more often or on a regular basis, involving itself earlier in the process. The committee would help iron out potential pro-

Still in dire straits, CUSD may try another parcel tax vote

By DAVID LELAND

CALL IT "Son of Parcel Tax."

Or perhaps, you may choose to consider the latest move by concerned parents and Carmel school district administrators as a sequel to last March's failed attempt to get a parcel tax approved.

No matter how you frame it, the Carmel Unified School District is still in dire financial straits to the tune of almost $4 million in outstanding capital improvements.

Do parcel tax supporters feel optimistic about a rematch?

"You bet your life," said CUSD Supt. Bob Infelise, referring to the measure that would have levied $80 on each parcel within the district for four years. "It was packaged well, it was understandable, we just didn't get enough 'Yes' votes."

Infelise added that the revised edition of the parcel tax could take place as soon as June, but the November general election would probably be selected as a target.

Prior to that time, parcel tax supporters will focus on property owners without children and elderly voters on fixed incomes, Infelise said.

'Some of these things are going to have to be done — that's all there is to it.'
— Vance Baldwin
— CUSD administrator

There is a chance, he added, that elderly property owners could be given a reduction of some sort on the parcel tax.

"We'll look at partial relief for senior citizens," Infelise said. "Not total relief."

In the last parcel tax election, supporters concentrated primarily on parents with children and were defeated by voters who seemingly had nothing to gain by approving

Panetta says less federal funds forthcoming to state

By DAVID LELAND

PENINSULA RESIDENTS still fuming over the county-funded, half-cent sales tax increase approved last month, may wince at the direction federal funding is heading, according to Rep. Leon Panetta.

REP. LEON Panetta of Carmel Valley, chairman of the House Budget Committee, is well aware of the far-reaching ramifications of fiscal insolvency.

As chairman of the House Budget Committee, one of the most powerful positions in the country, the Carmel Valley congressman knows of what he speaks.

"Politically you create a fantasy that if you don't raise taxes at the federal level everything will stand still," said Panetta, 51, who has fought for a federal increase in revenues .

Panetta characterized the federal government as "starving," paying $180 billion a year in interest alone.

Taxpayers are forced to pay a "regressive" tax on that interest, which eats up about 15 percent of the federal budget.

The result: less money available for critical funding on statewide issues.

What that means to California, and therefore peninsula residents, is less federal help in areas such as highway and infrastructure maintenance, middle- and low-income housing, health care and education.

With those topics essential to the well-being of a community, it becomes increasing obvious who will pick up the tab if the federal budget deficit is not decreased.

In transfering federal responsibility, the often-asked question becomes, how do you maintain a basic level of federal service?

"Our people are becoming victims of this transfer," said Panetta, who was elected to serve the 16th Congressional District in 1976. "It could all fall on people on a local level."

Panetta is only too aware of the pitfalls that could occur if the trend continues.

"The federal system is basically a partnership," he said. "If we don't get it back in balance, everything gets out of kilter."

'Politically you create a fantasy that if you don't raise taxes at the federal level everything will stand still.'
— Rep. Leon Panetta

The congressman offered several ideas on how the federal government can achieve fiscal health.

For one thing, it should not be up to the individual states to levy energy taxes, such as the proposed gasoline tax scheduled for the June ballot in California.

"Energy is a federal responsibility," Panetta said. "Conservation should be national."

He added that several states currently have energy-tax laws on the books, which limits the ability of the federal government to levy such a tax on oil imports.

AT THE core of Panetta's plan, however, is the reduction of the federal deficit — which currently stands between $150 billion and $200 billion.

His goal is to reduce the deficit by $40 billion to $50 billion next year by increasing revenue, such as an energy tax, and through savings by cutting defense and domestic program spending.

He also suggested a value added tax (VAT), a tax used by much of the world that levies money on luxury items.

He also said cigarettes and alcohol users could be faced with an excise tax.

At the heart of America's deficit is its citizens refusal to save. Americans save only 3 percent of their salaries, he said, which is in sharp contrast to countries such as Germany, whose citizens save 17 percent of their yearly pay.

"Our most serious problem is that we have lost our national savings," Panetta said. "Over time we've lost that (savings) ethic. We play a day-to-day game, the consequence is significant borrowing."

What that means to the federal goverment is it is forced to borrow from foreign investors to make up the deficit.

The United States currently is in debt to overseas investors to the tune of $600 billion, Panetta said.

"That's why we are on shaky ground," he said, referring to the idea that interest paid on the deficit goes abroad, rather than into our own economy.

This inability to offer the world an example of a healthy economy has far-reaching effects, he said.

"We're at such a delicate time in history," said Panetta, referring to the recent tumbling of the Berlin Wall and continuing anti-communist sentiment in Europe. "You have this tremendous opportunity for the U.S. to provide leadership in a New World order."

If things don't change in the United States, the world's eyes could focus on more solvent countries for guidance.

'Our most serious problem is that we have lost our national savings. Over time we've lost that (savings) ethic. We play a day-to-day game, the consequence is significant borrowing.'

"We're turning from military power to economic power," he said. "The U.S. certainly can't provide leadership. Are we going to sit on the sidelines or take part in it?"

THE PANACEA for America's monetary woes lies in biting the proverbial bullet, Panetta said.

"It's going to take some sacrifice," he said. "Nobody mentions sacrifice anymore."

Panetta said that he is all too aware that many members of Congress base their decisions on the news media.

"Decisions are based on how it plays on the evening news," he said. "Sometimes it plays well on the evening news, but it's not right for the country."

He added that he is optimistic that President Bush and Congress have the pragmatic views and recognize how economic policies must reflect a progressive trend in the coming year.

Water users may find meeting rationing quotas harder

MANY WATER customers risk exceeding their rationing quotas for the first time during the current building period, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District has announced.

According to the district, rationing standards are not any tougher, but the recent weather pattern apparently makes it more difficult to achieve the required 20-percent reduction.

During November, the community as a whole achieved only a 13-percent reduction in California-American Water Co. usage.

That compares with the previous 10 months of rationing when the community cut back an average of about 30 percent per month.

This year, the peninsula had only three days of rain. In 1987, there were six days of rain in November and 12 days in 1988.

So far in December of this year there has been no rain at all, while there were 16 rainy days in December 1987 and 11 days in December 1988.

The base year for comparing previous water usage to achieve 20-percent cutback runs from October 1987 through September 1988.

In other words, December 1989 water use should be compared with December 1987 (not 1988). In January 1990 the comaparision will be with January 1988 (not January 1989 as rationing was already in effect then).

"We're alerting people to this now because we don't want people to be surprised when they get a notice from the rationing office," explained water board chairman Dick Heuer.

"The inability to achieve more than a 13-percent reduction in November is probably due to increased landscape watering. The exceptionally dry December may make it even worse," he added. "Unfortunately, this means many notices of non-compliance will have to be sent out to people who, until now, were able to stay within the rationing limits."

Cal-Am bills cover a two-month period. When a customer exceeds the rationing limit for a billing period, the water district rationing office sends out a warning letter.

If the customer is in compliance for the next billing period, there is no penalty.

If rationing limits are exceeded two billing periods, however, a fine is levied. Amount of the fine increases rapidly with the amount of excess water used, and some fines have been very large, into thousands of dollars.

CSAA issues holiday alert

WITH THE holiday party season in full swing,the California State Automobile Association (AAA) reminds party-givers to "be first a friend, then a host."

Drinking drivers are responsible for approximately half the people killed in California traffic accidents, according to the CSAA. In California, 2,510 persons were killed in alcohol-related accidents in 1988 out of a total of 5,381 traffic deaths.

CSAA issues the following tips for party hosts:

- Suggest that your guests form car pools, with designated drivers who agree to remain sober.
- Don't make drinking the primary activity at your party. Focus on dancing, games, food or conversation.
- Make sure that non-alcoholic drinks are available.
- Use fruit juice or tea as a base for alcohol-content punch. Carbonated mixers speed up the rate that alcohol is absorbed into the body.
- Provide plenty of food because it helps slow the body's absorption of alcohol. Offer meat, cheese and other high-protein foods, which stay in the stomach longer.
- At least two hours before the party is scheduled to end, put away the alcoholic beverages. Continue to provide plenty of non-alcoholic drinks.
- Offer your guests a late snack to end the evening.

Quick cures won't help those who have overindulged, CSAA says. Taking a cold shower or drinking a lot of coffee after too much alcohol makes a person wide-awake, but still drunk, the AAA-affiliated auto club emphasizes.

If guests do drink too much, the host can call organizations that offer free transportation to party-goers, pay for a taxi ride home, drive the guests home or let them spend the night.

If drinkers insist on driving, the party-giver can call 911 to reach the local police department or, if highway travel is involved, the California Highway Patrol. It is helpful to have a description of the vehicle, including color and license plate number.

To help party hosts provide non-alcoholic drinks, a holiday party guide containing alcohol-free drink recipes has been issued by the California State Automobile Association, the Office of Traffic Safety of the Nevada Department of Motor Vehicles and Public Safety and Harrah's Reno.

The booklets are designed to encourage party-givers to be responsible hosts and to provide non-alcoholic drinks for guests who are driving.

The guides list 18 alcohol-free dirnk recipes created by professional bartenders. Among the names of drinks listed are BADD (Bartenders Against Drunk Drivers), Designated Driver, and Sober Thought.

Copies of the booklets are available from California State Automobile Association district offices.

Regional traffic model may help control future traffic problems

By DAVID LELAND

MEMBERS OF the peninsula Transportation Task Force share no illusions that a regional traffic model will offer a panacea for future planning problems. It could, however, keep the matter under local control.

For the past nine months, civic leaders from Monterey County and peninsula cities from Sand City to Carmel, have worked together in an effort to gather current traffic data.

That information is being given to the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG), which will complete an $80,000 computer traffic impact model sometime this summer.

The software and hardware acquired by AMBAG were selected based on staff research and advice from Caltrans experts, who have provided staffing for the project.

"It won't be binding legislation, but it will provide accurate information," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who also serves as AMBAG president. "Instead of basing our traffic decisions on conjecture, we will make them on accurate figures."

The model will not be used for the purpose of imposing traffic mitigation fees, development fees or other mechanisms to generate revenue for transportation improvements, according to Nicolas Papadakis, AMBAG executive director.

The county and cities have chipped in a total of $51,000 for the computer model, with the Federal Highway Administration and AMBAG offering $29,000, Strasser Kauffman said.

She added that the model will be available for jurisdictions to accurately forecast the impact of a particular project on other cities.

"I anticipate we will have some very controversial discussions and we'll have some arguments on what will be done in the future," said Strasser Kauffman, referring to the idea that Sand City may have to consider traffic impacts on Carmel Valley in its building plans.

Time is of the essence because a statewide gasoline tax on the ballot this June contains a mandate that says jurisdictions must prepare accurate traffic data.

"If we don't take this action and get our house in order, the state will take over and order us to take certain steps," Strasser Kauffman said. "Now we'll be ahead of the game."

IF APPROVED, the gasoline tax, which would generate $18.5 billion for road improvements over the next 10 years, has two major objectives, according to John Stevens, principal consultant for the State Assembly's Traffic Transportation Committee.

One is to achieve a long-range solution for traffic by using state-of-the-art innovations, the other is to recognize the direct link between transportation and its effects on the environment.

"Growth is going to continue in the state," Stevens said. "New development must be mitigated."

In other words, the time has come for citizens to begin working as a cohesive unit, rather than separate entities.

By December 1991, all urban areas of the state must develop a "congestion adoption plan," Stevens said.

For those who fail to do so or do not abide by the rules, the state is prepared to withhold funding from the gasoline tax, Stevens said.

Of the $18.5 billion to be gathered in revenues; $3 billion of that money is slated for local jurisdictions, he said.

"I would not want to see us lose one of the two areas where we have control," said Strasser Kauffman, referring to land use and police powers. "The traffic problems we have cannot be solved by one jurisdiction — we're in this together."

CUSD may try parcel tax again

the tax, seniors and adults without children.

Almost a year later, the urgency for financial relief has only grown worse as district buildings, buses and surrounding areas are that much older.

The CUSD appears to be in step with 25 percent of the nation's schools. In other words, one in four facilities are in need of repair, according to a study by the Education Writers Association.

The study adds that nearly two-thirds of the nation's schools were constructed in the 1950s and 1960s.

That, the study said, was "generally a time of rapid and cheap construction...Many experts say the buildings were intended to last only about 30 years. If so, their time is up."

The CUSD currently has classrooms in dire need of repairs at Carmel River and Carmel High schools. Under new state guidelines, the CUSD Board of Trustees will be liable for accidents in those unsafe rooms after next September.

If there is no money to fix the classrooms, the students will have to be relocated, Infelise said.

Or take the CUSD's fleet of buses.

"We still have a 1959 bus taking kids back and forth to school," Infelise said.

As time passes, so does the school's ability to wait for help in making repairs.

"Some of these things are going to have to be done — that's all there is to it," said Vance Baldwin, CUSD assistant superintendant.

WHILE IT would be possible to raid the district's general fund, which basically funds teacher salaries, Infelise said it would not be prudent.

"For us to go into the general fund to fund new buses would be ludicrous," said Infelise, adding that a new bus costs about $118,000.

If the general fund is used to fix capital improvements, a deficit would be created, Infelise said.

Another option for revenue is the sale of three parcels of land owned by the district that is located in Carmel Valley.

Appraised in 1981 at a little more than $1 million, the land is slated more for long-range financial solvency, rather than short-term improvements.

At its Dec. 14 board meeting, it was decided to make an "aggressive" attempt to generate income from the sale or lease of the three sites.

Nevertheless, any action "would take years dealing with planning agencies and potential buyers," Infelise said.

After the eventual sale, the district plans to put the money in a high-interest savings account and accumulate interest.

"We're trying to use this land to prevent this (shortage of money for repairs), from happening again," Baldwin said.

In the meantime, CUSD officials and concerned parents are forced to sit helplessly by and watch as the schools deteriorate.

The future looks bleak without some financial assistance in the form of a parcel tax.

"I predict we will have some serious personnel problems within the district," said Infelise, referring to impending layoffs. "(Also) class size will be dramatically affected if we don't get more money."

If the sites continue to become unsafe, studies could also suffer.

"It's quite possible that there would be a disruption to the curriculum," said Infelise, referring to class closings and disruption in bus service.

The Statue of Liberty was originally to be set up at the Suez Canal.

Council takes on design review

blems in design through informal discussions which are non-binding to the commission.

But it is not enough, according to the builders who must bring their designs before the commission.

One builder who favors a separate design review or architectural commission, Chris Tescher, described to the council what he said happened to him on one of his houses.

Tescher said he met first with staff a couple of times and went over the design. The staff gave the house a favorable report but when it was brought before the planning commission during a full commission meeting, commissioners, he said, "shot it down."

"I said, well, OK, that's the way you do it — go back (after changes.) It was shot down again."

"By this time, there was a lot of frustration on my part. It took about five months of wasted time and effort."

"I'm in favor of a strong design board. I'm a little aghast at what we have right now. You go through the whole process, there is no guarantee that the commission is going to vote for it then you're back to square one. (Any design commission) has to have some kind of authority," said Tescher.

"It can't be just a way station. If a design commission is without power, it is just another layer to the process. That doesn't solve anything. It has to be, so we aren't duplicating the process over and over again.

"I have the deepest respect for the people on the planning commission, but I do not feel they have the time to be both a design review body and a planning commission. It takes weeks and months to work out a good design. The planning commission is trying to do the best it can but taking on the added load of being a design review commission is impossible."

Not so, the commission maintains. In its memo to the council, the planning commission states that a separate committee will:

- "Complicate the process and add to the bureaucracy in a very small town."
- "Would not alleviate the planning commission workload. The commission can alloate its workload so that more time can be spent on long-range planning."
- That the "commission can change the current design review procedures that would achieve the same objectives of creating a separate board.
- "Changing the design review procedures by creating a new body should not be the first step. Sitting down with the city council and sorting out the perceived problems with the current process should happen first. Then the commission can see what changes should be made to the current process in response to the problems."

City attorney Don Freeman gave the council and commission two warnings. One, as city attorney, he expressed the concern that if the committee got involved in the design process too early, it might be open to involving itself in designing the project set up false expectations of approval.

Freeman, who explained he is also a member of the Pacific Grove planning commission, said that Pacific Grove has trouble with the two separate commissions and an applicant often finds himself with approval from one government body and unable to get their project through the other.

But both the planning commission and builders state that the committee must get involved early on in the process.

COUNCILMEMBER Ken White sees the problem in a different light.

"I think we are staggering around in the wilderness and just talking around the problem. We really need to decide how big of a house you can put on a 4,000-square-foot lot," he said after the meeting. "I think that most people feel the houses are too damn big. We have to strengthen the ordinance, it cannot be subjective. Builders and designers need specific criteria that they have to follow. The council needs to ask itself a specific question: what do they think should be the square feet that should be allowed on a 4,000-square-foot lot. They should also ask for a strengthening of the open space requirement. Should it be 50 percent open space? Right now, we are down to 46 percent."

Builders strenuously object to a reduction in the size of the houses allowed on a lot.

"I think they first have to define the problem, if there is a problem. Once they find out what the problem is then they can get a better handle on how to correct it," Tescher told The Carmel Pine Cone.

He added that the city "drastically" reduced the size of allowed homes about a year ago, but now the council is right back where they started from.

The council has discussed reducing the square footage permited on a 4,000-square-foot lot from 1,800 square feet to 1,600 square feet.

"I would bet if you put a 1,600-square-foot house next to a 1,800-square-foot house they would both look the same. Two hundred square feet on the ouside is very little but on the inside it is a lot," he said.

Making the numbers in the code more restrictive only eliminates creativity, the most important ingredient that contributed to Carmel's unique character.

> 'I think we are staggering around in the wilderness and just talking around the problem. We really need to decide how big of a house you can put on a 4,000-square-foot lot. I think that most people feel the houses are too damn big.'
> — Ken White

If the city wants smaller houses, Tescher said, they should offer incentives. Also, they should learn a lesson from the past.

"About five years ago when they changed the general plan, there should have been provisions for design review set out."

They need to define what they are talking about in design, he added.

"Doesn't fit in with village character? They always use that — but what to they mean by village character?" Tescher asked.

"One of my favorite sayings — it's from a movie — is it 'is better to know where you are going and not know how to get there than to know how but not know where.' "

Planners keep density in R-4 at 33 units per acre

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission took a giant step at its meeting last Wednesday and settled on its zoning regulations of the R-4 district, keeping density at 33 units per acre.

The planning commission's recommendations will go for a final review to the Carmel City Council on Jan. 9, 1990, perhaps ending a long chapter in the city's history.

The city planning commission and city council have struggled for years to settle on what the zoning regulations for the area between Torres and Mission streets and Third and Fourth avenues should be.

The area is a conglomeration of residences, city facilities, motels and businesses.

The R-4, which borders the residential zone, was intended as a transition zone between the commercial district and residential district.

A specific plan proposed in 1987 that proposed changing the density from 33 units per acre to 66 units per acre along Junipero Street generated an outcry of protest from neighbors of the area.

The controversy propelled the city into purchasing the largest single developable site in the zone — the Handley property — for $2.5 million.

This year, after the completion of an environmental impact report on the zone, the commission once again picked up the R-4 zoning problem, though, with Handley property in city hands, the debate was much less intense.

The commission's recommendations include:

- Keep density at 33 units per acre, which allows three units on a 4,000 or 5,000 square foot property.
- Apartments or condominiums or a mixed project are allowed.
- Allow any business allowed in the residential-commercial zone, which includes the existing businesses in the R-1, but prohibit new commercial square footage.
- Increasing the required open space from 20 percent to 45 percent of a lot or building site.
- An increase of the landscape requirement from 8 percent to 27 percent.
- A reduction in permitted building coverage from 80 percent to 55 percent.
- Reduction of allowed building height from 30 feet to 26 feet.
- A total allowed floor area on a site of 90 percent.
- Increased front setbacks to 10 feet from 5 feet and allow flexibility for property owners on where to put setbacks for side and back use as long as the total feet required is there.
- Protect the coastal view from the intersection of Torres Street and Third Avenue by establishing a protected corridor across city-owned property.

Council to hold special meeting on water limits

THE CARMEL City Council will conduct a special meeting this Thursday to determine its position on limitation of water use and connection permits.

The council will send a letter to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District before the district's meeting on the issues Jan. 8. On Dec. 4, the water district imposed a temporary suspension of all water connection permits, but will refine the limitations at the upcoming January meeting.

The council will meet at 4 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 21 in Carmel City Council Chambers at city hall.

The discussion will include the council's position on changes to the water rationing program.

In the past year, the council has taken the position that new water should not be issued for any projects that increase water (with Elinor Laiolo dissenting).

The council has not determined how long it would like the limitation to last, but it could be until at least the allocation program environmental impact report is reviewed.

At this time, the city is accepting building and construction applications in the normal manner and putting them through the process.

"We did not know when the effective date will be for projects in process," associate planner Brian Roseth explained. "We didn't want to second quess (the district.)"

The council will also discuss if it wishes to ask for grant money from the water district to improve or augment its subpotable water distribution program.

CVPOA elections slated for January

SEVEN INCUMBENTS and seven challengers are vying for eight vacancies on the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association board, according to Max Chaplin, CVPOA president.

Balloting will be by mail to the CVPOA's 1,274 members during January, with a deadline of Jan. 30 set to receive ballots.

Tabulations will be done by members of the CVPOA nominating committee under Rod Mills, chairman-elect.

"We have an outstanding group of candidates," Chaplin said. "They are younger, successful in their fields and clearly destined for leadership in our community. There are more candidates than vacancies and this gives members a choice of talents."

Five officers of the association are seeking re-election. These are Chaplin, president; Rod Mills, vice president; Jim Tritten, recording secretary; Feesie Heuer, corresponding secretary; and Ileene Crane Franks, treasurer.

Running for positions on the board of directors are two incumbents, Robert Greenwood, retired teacher and geologist; and Vernon Juergens, genetic and agricultural development specialist.

Other candidates include John L. Freitas, executive director of the Carmel Foundation; Robert Hunsicker, retired owner of a manufacturing business and chairman of the Los Tulares Homeowners Association; Ed Jones, president of the Asoleado Homeowners Association; Alice Kinsler, director of development of the Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital Foundation; Lee Rieman, retired law enforcement officer; and Reid Woodward, independent investor, metalsmith and teacher.

Boardmember R.T. Nimmons, who has served two terms as president of the CVPOA and has been a member for eight years, will not seek re-election.

New officers and directors will be formally installed on Feb. 15 during the CVPOA's annual meeting.

Suicide Prevention Center grew out of a need in the community

(Editor's Note: The Carmel Pine Cone will run, on a regular basis, articles on the various organizations and agencies that benefit from the charity efforts of the United Way of the Monterey Peninsula. This week's agency is the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center.)

THE SUICIDE Prevention and Crisis Center has been providing Services to Monterey County since February 1968.

We grew out of the need in the community to respond to the serious issue of suicide and depression. We provide the only 24-hour suicide crisis line in Monterey County and last year we responded to 4,421 calls on our crisis line.

Due to the fact that we advertise complete confidentiality and anonymity for distressed people needing to call our 24-hour crisis line, we do not require that the callers give us their name or city of residence. However, in 1988, we were able to detect that 497 of our callers were calling from the Carmel area.

In 1985, we identified a need in the community to assist not only the individuals in a suicidal crisis, but also to provide grief support to family members and friends of suicide victims. For each person who commits suicide, or dies suddenly, there are at least 10 individual survivors who are at risk for suicide themselves, as they grieve the loss of their loved one.

Survivors of sudden death, especially survivors when suicide is the cause of death, are thrown into a state of trauma and despair. In 1988, we provided 1,797 hours of grief support services to children and adults by our Survivor of Sudden Death Program.

For the Carmel area we have worked with eight families, plus three Carmel residents attended our survivor of suicide support group.

In 1988, there were 46 suicides in Monterey County, with an additional 228 sudden deaths resulting from accidents, violent crime, and sudden illness. As of this date there have been 31 suicides in the county, 7 of whom were adolescents.

In the past five years we have focused much of our education prevention efforts in the issues related to adolescent suicide. With our community education program we have worked with groups of peer counselors, and spoken to many classes of adolescents regarding depression and suicide.

We provided a county-wide workshop in February 1988 on Childhood and Adolescent Depression and Suicide, followed by two workshops teaching intervention techniques, in February and April of 1989. Many teachers, counselors, nurses and school administrators attend all three workshops.

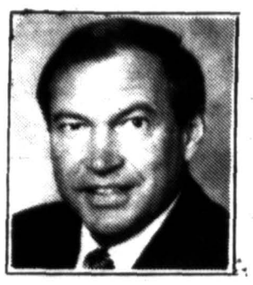
1990 INFINITI Q45



By Jim Johnson

Innovative technology

IN JULY of 1987 Nissan first announced formation of the Infiniti motor car division. A promise to make, sell, buy, drive and service the new Q 45 and M 30 luxury class of Infiniti automobiles, drawn heavily from successful Oriental heritage would be followed.

"You can't be different borrowing from tradition,"-is the design and driving message finished in the new Q45's four-door full size luxury sedan. If Captain Nemo were to resurface in an amphibious Nautilus, he would be hard pressed to attract more attention. This is not to imply that the Q45 is half sea bass and half car. It gleans positive attention because it is a striking exercise of modern automotive design — supported by a sleek drag co-efficient of 0.30, with full size exterior mirrors.

Infiniti's advanced design perception is consistent through interior design and performance. Analog Instrumentation and control placement is what you would expect tomorrow: Positioned and clustered by function, they are most accessible for emergency response. Comfortable leather seats are firm. Leg and head room, in front is excellent. In relationship to big sedan exterior, I found rear leg room to be tight. Three-point seat belts are positioned at the corners. Reaching for imperfection, the flush mounted sun visor releases are hard to find without visual help. The interiors general theme, even with non-contrasting colors, is consistent — not a hybrid blend of futurism and traditional European wood.

An all-new aluminum 4.5-liter, four-cam, 32-valve V8 power plant generates 278 HP. A 6,900 RPM redline gives the signal of what to expect. A 0 to 60 time of 7.2 seconds and a top speed of 155 mph rank it on top of 1990's new class of luxury V8's. Passing, accelerating from 55 to 85 is overpowering.

"Driving character" is control, balance and vehicle feed back. The big 4.5-liter idles as quietly as a turbin. Under acceleration it projects a turbins hum, giving the driver a sense of speed and control. Gear selection placement to throttle response is perfect. Leveled off, The Q45 soars as quietly as a bird in flight. Passing acceleration from 55 to 80 is sensational - reminiscing of a old big bore supercharged hemi Chrysler V8.

Giving consideration to the Q45's comfortable 3,925-pound weight, its performance approaches a BMW 750il's. Yet, its unique character is so strong that, advertising implying European sedan comparisons are not necessary. Equipped with optional HICAS four-wheel drives steering, the Q45 handling will only improve, if that is possible.

Infiniti focuses into the 1990s with a division philosophy of: "Total Ownership Experience." Positive ownership encompasses: dealer choice, employee training, security of adequate warranty, service coverage, and comprehensive financing. With a uniform look, all Infiniti dealers will reflect subtle Japanese flavor.

New, uniform buildings will require tremendous financial commitment from start-up dealers. with a very competitive luxury sedan market emerging, standing out in a crowd means strong brand recognition. And is there a better theme to capitalize on than your own successful heritage.

A Oriental heritage evidenced by their ability to read the needs of the U.S. market, and masterly provide reliable modern cars that meet our needs. A automotive heritage symbolic of good management.

INFINTI Q45 pictured traversing Los Laureles Grade, Carmel Valley, Ca. In a fusion of comfort and convince, exceptional performance, and workman ship, the new Infiniti Division of Nissan announces the launch of the division with two new cars: the Q45 luxury sedan and the M30 luxury coupe. BICYCLING

Several scenic lengths of roadway offer pleasant bike riding without heavy traffic hazards. Part of the famous 17-Mile Drive in Pebble Beach is one.

On weekends, holidays and times of major sporting events, bicycle riders are permitted to enter the Pacific Grove gate only.

During normal weekdays, riders may enter any gate during daylight hours with no restricted route. Large groups of more than 10 should enter the Pacific Grove gate and follow the posted route for their own safety, three or four at a time. There is no gate fee for bicyclists, unless bikes are brought in by car. The fee per car is $5.50.

All riders are required upon entry to sign a permit and waiver form, regardless of gate or time of entry.

A particularly lovely part of the Monterey Peninsula is the Pacific Grove shoreline, with its white beaches, picturesque black rocks and beautiful plantings.

A spectacular, two-lane paved bicycle trail stretches for one mile along the craggy Pacific Grove shoreline from the Monterey Bay Aquarium to Lovers' Point. It is free and open to the public.

Carmel's Scenic Road is a short ride one way from north to south.

A bicycles-only path extends from the extreme north end of Seaside, past Fort Ord and all the way to Marina. Regular users of the trail consider it a beautiful trip.

All cities on the Monterey Peninsula permit bicycling on the public streets, subject to all traffic rules which apply to automobiles, including driving on the right, stopping at stop signs, signaling to turn, carrying lights at night and the like. Riding on sidewalks is not allowed.

A portion of the freeway — Highway 1 — can be used. It begins just north of Aquajito Road and parallels the freeway, ending just north of Reservation Road in Marina.

A wide shoulder suitable for bicycling has been constructed along Carmel Valley Rd., which turns off Highway 1 south of Carmel. However, this is only along the relatively short four-lane stretch. Farther up the Valley the road is two lanes and some of it could be risky for cyclists.

Experienced bicyclists point out, however, that riding is as safe as the cyclist and his bike make it for him. Observing the road rules, keeping himself in good physical trim for biking and keeping his wheels in good condition are pluses for safety.

Flow of culture

FOR A change of pace as I swing into high gear for the holidays, I offer you something written for a different occasion: the Sunset Center bond burning in September.

When Richard Tyler asked me, as a new member of Carmel's Community and Cultural Commission, to "put something together" about culture in Carmel, I found it to be quite a challenge. Sharing the result with you now seems timely in view of upcoming discussions about the use of Forest Theater and other challenging items on the commission's January agenda.

It's also a small farewell gift to you, Richard, with appreciation. (Richard Tyler, director of Sunset Center for 13 years, retires Dec. 28.)

THE FLOW of cultural activities in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has been like a river that knows no drought: strong, deep, certain.

The beginnings of that stream can be seen as far back as 1905, when a group of residents formed the "Arts and Crafts Club" to foster the cultural life of the community. Other streams fed into this river, among them a library (1906), the Forest Theater (1910), the Carmel Pine Cone newspaper (1915), the Golden Bough Theater (1924), the Carmel Music Society (1926), the Carmel Art Association (1927), the Bach Festival (1933), the Monterey County Symphony (1946), and in 1959, the Arts Commission, forerunner of the present Community and Cultural Commission.

Over the past 30 years since the establishment of that Arts Commission there have been some rough passages, some shallows, some diversions to lesser streams. But groups and individuals have chosen to support, monitor and encourage the flow of culture.

The Arts Commission's first concern was leases and rental fees for Forest Theater. Then came plans for an annual Fine Arts Festival: art exhibits, theatrical performances and musical presentations. As the flow of cultural activities widened, the Arts Commission recommended to the city council that it acquire the Sunset School property and there develop a new and larger center for the creative arts. The community's response was clear: 89 percent of the nearly 1,500 voters approved the $575,000 principal amount of municipal improvement bonds to finance that purchase.

Acquisition of Sunset Center as the jewel in the crown of theater and music resources led, in 1967, to the establishment of the Carmel Cultural Commission, bringing together the concerns of the Sunset Commission and the original Arts Commission. The new commissioners stated: "We recognize and wholeheartedly support Carmel's artistic tradition and heritage. We intend therefore to accord to all branches of genuine art, music, sculpture, painting, drama, ballet and others, our full and friendly consideration."

Development of the buildings of Sunset Center over the past 25 years has supported the growth of the cultural environment in Carmel. In 1972 the north portico was enclosed and converted into a gallery, thanks in part to an anonymous donation of $7,500. At the opening of the gallery Mayor Bernard Anderson clearly called upon the citizens of Carmel to open up the arts to a wider public by subsidizing not only the safely established arts but also "the new, the experimental, and the risky ones." He challenged the new gallery "to do for visual arts what we have already begun to do for performing arts in the Sunset Center Theater and in the Forest Theater."

Downstream the emphasis has been on both study and performance. In 1978, Richard Tyler, director of Sunset Center, wrote that it is only through the performance of a seasoned artist that the talented individual has an opportunity for constant motivation. "There must be a training ground offered by experienced technicians; there must be the professional presentation; and there should be an exchange of experiences to create the proper personal growth of one's talents."

Today, the many rooms of Sunset Center, together with the Forest Theater and associated facilities, hum with an assortment of tunes: music, art, dance, theater arts, lectures. Some newer tunes, too: church groups, self-improvement classes, gymnastics, yoga, meetings galore...And a recent brainstorming session of the Cultural Commission's program committee considered garden tours, Western history lectures and short musical performances in the city's parks among many possibilities for future development.

Is this widening stream a natural and welcome expansion of earlier concepts? "Intellectual and artistic activity" is a simple definition of the word culture, to which the local community brings all the diverse points of view of its current residents. They are the people who followed the artists, writers and musicians who were themselves "newcomers" early in the 20th century.

Today's "bond burning" provides an opportunity to look back to the original intention of the city in establishing an arts commision, and then turn toward the future. How do we want to define culture in the years ahead? Where do we want to go in planning program under that definition? The Community and Cultural Commission is an agent for the city and its residents through which the many and varied voices of the city and its wider community will be heard. The river that is culture in Carmel flows on. Its beauty, clarity and strength are in the hands of the community.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Corporate jargon

I SEEM to have spent the greatest portion of 25 years in business within the structure of one national corporation or another, and, in retrospect, I have to wonder why?

I suppose the simplest answer is security. Someone was forever offering me a new management position in a nurturing environment with great growth potential. I can't remember ever having been offered growth potential that wasn't great. Unfortunately, as did Charlie Brown, I soon learned that there is no heavier burden than a great potential.

Nor can I remember having been offered money for accepting these management positions, although that is what I always received. No, as I recall, what I was offered was meaningful compensation. In return for this, I was required to keep my eye on the bottom line. I defy anybody who has his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, and his eye on the bottom line to get any work done in that position.

Most of those years of misguided servitude occurred during the '70s and '80s when fad social theories (such as TM and EST), were emerging and their language, as well as their philosophies, were permeating the board rooms of America. I can remember attending endless management conferences where social gurus and other witch doctors conducted seminars on interpersonal relationships, growth potential and self-actualization. Today the vestiges of those theories can be found in the incomprehensible jargon of business schools and corporate motivational programs.

Edwin Newman, for example, points out that no corporation in America today can be without outlooks. Neither can they be without innovative ideas (as opposed to ideas that are not innovative), and like missiles, these ideas are usually aimed at target areas. Today, every company requires capabilities, of which there are an endless variety; overall, mangerial, systems, to name just a few. Systems themselves are also necessary and are used to penetrate multiple market layers.

Other things corporations can't be without are overviews, usually of the corporate, market, or management type. Managers use them not to make decisions, but to effect decision-making, usually of a soundandprudent type to achieve goalsandobjectives.

In this world of corporate chicspeak, nouns become verbs, conjunctions and prepositions disappear and compounds flourish, such as Employee Capability Interface Implementation Teams who employ professional trainers to identify high-motivation development characteristics. We once had a form given to us as middle level managers titled, Prior Background Managerial Experience Evaluation. The content was as inane as the title. Presumably, prior background referred to prenatal experience.

In today's corporate environment people don't dislike one another, they are conflicted in interpersonal relationships and sociology professionals are hired to improve motivational reinforcement foundations, a possible breakthrough for the construction industry. No one thinks in corporate America, one conceptualizes and rather than talk one verbalizes or articulates. About what? About easy panaceas (as opposed to hard ones) and viable options (as opposed to ineffectual ones).

Tasks are no longer finished, they are completed in their totality. People don't cooperate with one another, they seek an interdisciplinary process approach. Crime, unemployment and child or wife abuse are now adverse social consequences while the greatest of corporate crimes is a negative attitude which fosters cognitive inertia or, heaven forbid, intergroup dissonance. The answer to this, of course, is to probe exogenous variables for positive externalities.

Some people are not emotionally suited for coporate management so, if you tend to snicker at jargon such as this, you are probably better off staying away from the corporate game room.

I had a policy, as a manager, of never creating a miscellaneous file for, what I believed were, obvious reasons. Once I moved into the office of a person I was replacing and found four full drawers of files marked "miscellaneous." Before tossing them I made the mistake of informing the branch manager of my intentions. After a moment's reflection, he "authorized my initiative," but advised me to "keep copies."

I had an irritating habit of ignoring directives such as that one. Other habits of mine were found to be equally irritating. One that I employed with regularity as a branch manager was to remove all the paperwork left in my "in" box at the end of the day and place it in my "out" box.

My office administrator, with some evident frustration, asked me why I insisted upon doing that. "It saves time," I told her, "and you'd be astounded at how little of it comes back." My reward for this bit of ingenuity was an unamused glare from her and complaint to my superior. As Robert Townsend so eloquently put it, "Up the Organization!"

PADRE CORNER

Living in America

CHRISTMAS IS the time of year when families come together in a holiday spirit. But this year, Delwyn Stocker won't be with her family, or will she? Delwyn is an American Field Student (AFS) from New Zealand, and this year her Christmas will be quite different. She has a new family and is in a new country.

Upon arriving at San Francisco airport, Delwyn was greeted with open arms by her new family. Some of her fellow exchange students were worried about having to call their new parents "mom" and "dad," but Del didn't have a problem with that at all. "They are the nicest parents I could have ever gotten," she said. "They feel like real parents to me."

Her brother in America is like a true brother. "We fight like real brothers and sisters do. It's really great," she said. They get along really well, and he is a true friend.

Recently, Delwyn experienced one of America's greatest treasures, Disneyland. "It was like a dream. I had never seen anything like it before. It was almost unbelievable." Her family has spent a lot of time with her, and they have plans to take her skiing at Lake Tahoe this Christmas. She also plans to travel to the nation's capital, Washington D.C., with the Close Up program at school. Hopefully, these experiences will give her a good look at America and our way of life.

Delwyn has enjoyed Carmel High School very much. She is a very spirited and involved student. One of her favorite activities is varsity basketball. "It's much more competitive here than in New Zealand," she says. "It's a much better atmosphere for playing."

Basketball has helped Del find new friends and become involved in the school. Her classes, she says, are relatively easy. She feels that there is a lot more pressure in New Zealand to do well and it requires a lot of work.

Being a senior, Delwyn will graduate with Carmel High School's class of 1990. Therefore, she will be missing out on graduating in New Zealand with her friends there. "I feel sort of sad," she says, "but when I look back upon this year, I won't regret it. I'm having a really great time here."

Del is looking forward to celebrating Christmas with her new family. She misses her real family in New Zealand, but this Christmas is very special to her, and she wouldn't miss it for the world.

She says that her only problem with being an exchange student is communicating. Her accent is very strong; she often has to repeat herself three or four times before getting her point across. Hopefully this will improve with time. However, somehow I hope it doesn't. It wouldn't be as much fun to talk with her if she had an American accent.

PRAYER FOR SUCCESS

When it looks like I have failed, Lord, are you trying to tell me something?
For failure doesn't mean I'm a failure; it does mean I haven't yet succeeded.
Failure doesn't mean I have accomplished nothing. It does mean I have learned something.
Failure doesn't mean I have been a fool — it does mean I have enough faith to experiment.
Failure doesn't mean I've been disgraced; it does mean I dare to try.
Failure doesn't mean I don't have it. It does mean I have to do something in a different way.
Failure doesn't mean I'm inferior. It does mean I'm not perfect.
Failure doesn't mean I've wasted my life. It does mean I have an excuse to start over again.
Failure doesn't mean I should give up. It does mean I should try harder.
Failure doesn't mean I'll never make it. It does mean I need more patience.
Failure doesn't mean You have abandoned. It does mean you must have a better idea.
Thank you, Lord.

A blue ribbon winner for "Best in Dickens" theme.

Anne Dick of Pebble beach was the overall chairperson of judging this year. CARMEL KIWANIS LAUNCH CHRISTMAS TOY DRIVE

The Carmel Kiwanis Club is collecting toys for Christmas to deliver to children who are victims of the Loma Prieta earthquake. New or gently used toys may be dropped off at Great Western Savings, Seventh and Dolores in Carmel, or at JHW Architects, 299 Cannery Row in Monterey. Checks to buy toys will also be accepted and may be mailed to PO Box 1213, Carmel 93921.

The deadline is Dec. 15 so that all donations can be delivered to the Salvation Army to be distributed to victims of the quake on time.

B OF A AND USMC TEAM UP IN TOYS FOR TOTS

Bank of America will team up with the United States Marine Corps Reserve to support the annual Toys for Tots campaign.

As an official sponsor of the Corps' annual Toys for Tots program, B of A will open its 850 branches as collection sites for toys, ensuring that hundreds of needy California youngsters will not be disappointed on Christmas morning.

All toys must be new and not gift wrapped and can be dropped off at any Bank of America branch. On Dec. 20, the 23 USMC Reserve units will make final pick-up of toys from all collection sites. The final phase — distribution of toys — is conducted under auspices of recognized social welfare agencies.

YMCA TREE LOT LOCATION CHANGED

The Monterey Peninsula Y's Men's Club Christmas tree lot has changed locations. This year the lot is located at Broadway and Terrace streets, one block up from Fremont in Seaside. The lot is open from noon to 8 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends.

All proceeds go into YMCA youth projects. For more information call Jerry Ackerman at 625-2205 or the tree lot at 899-3296.

PUT A SMILE ON A CHILD

The Churches of Scientology throughout the Bay Area announced their 1989 toy drive, to "put a smile on a child."

Each of the 15 churches from Santa Rosa to Monterey, including 540 Lighthouse in New Monterey, are serving as drop-off locations for toy donations.

Spokesperson Darlene Friccero is urging that people donate as many new toys as possible, though they won't turn away old toys.

"Every year is a year of need, but this one even more so due to the earthquake," said Friccero. "In some small way, we're improving life in a troubled world."

"A smile on every child's face this Christmas, that would be nice."

Shopping spree

THE CARMEL Kiwanis Club wound up its toy drive with a shopping spree at Thinker Toys in Carmel, buying more than 10 boxes full of toys to be donated to victims of the Loma Prieta earthquake. Cash donations garnered during the drive were matched dollar-for-dollar by Thinker Toys' Mark Phillips. Salvation Army Capt. Randy Kinnamon supervised the happy shoppers, which included Gary Ritter, Kiwanis Club president; Alice Morgan, secretary; Roger Parkes and Judie Winslow. Parkes was responsible for the major portion of funds raised by engineering a raffle of 49er tickets donated by an anonymous donor. Red Cross shelters were staffed in Watsonville, Boulder Creek, Santa Cruz and Hollister by volunteers from the Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross almost immediately after Oct. 17th earthquake.

According to Phil Gray, chapter public relations, on one day last month 1,060 people were fed three meals each and 135 slept overnight in the chapter's shelter at the Veteran's Hall in Watsonville. Almost 400 volunteers have helped the chapter out from Day 1 of the earthquake, Gray said.

The Red Cross is currently seeking volunteers to help on their blood drives. Volunteers undergo two two-hour training sessions at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

For more information or to volunteer, contact the Carmel Red Cross chapter house at Eighth and Dolores or call 624-6921 anytime after 1 p.m. or CHOMP Blood Center at 625-4841.

THOSE IN NEED FIND "ROOM AT THE INN" THIS HOLIDAY SEASON AT THE DOUBLETREE HOTEL MONTEREY

There will be "Room at the Inn" when the Doubletree Hotel in Monterey again provides free, short-term lodging accommodations to those in need during this holiday season.

As in past years, the hotel plans to meet the growing need in the community for emergency accommodations, a need most acutely felt during the holidays by the less fortunate.

"Room at the Inn" will provide free rooms to those requiring emergency accommodations when there are no other alternatives available. Referrals to the hotel are made by the United Way agencies, the Salvation Army, YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula, Family Resource Center, the Catholic Social Services, the Red Cross and the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"In the spirit of giving, the Doubletree Hotel is reaching out to help the less fortunte during this special time of the year," said Dan Brown, director of marketing. "We want to bring some light and warmth into the lives of these people who, for whatever reason, find themselves in unfortunate circumstances."

Doubletree Hotels began "Room at the Inn" a few years ago, discovering an ever-increasing need for the community service and has upped the scope of the program each year to fill that need. Doubletree has now established the program as an annual holiday tradition that will be presented as a gift to all the communities where the hotels are located.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS BEGINS "FREE AGENT" SIGNINGS

It took George Steinbrenner $2.2 million to sign New York Yankee slugger Don Mattingly in 1989 and the Los Angeles Dodgers were forced to dip into their coffers $10 million deep to ink pitcher Orel Hershiser, but Monterey County businesses have fallen into line for a major sports bargain with the Special Olympics "Sponsor An Athlete" program announced recently.

Area businesses, or individuals, can "sign" a Special Olympics athlete to a 1990 playing contract for the total sum of $500; no fine print, no long-term deferred annuity packages, no salary arbitration, no holdouts and best of all, a rich and rewarding experience with Special Olympics.

The $500 sponsorship package covers the cost of an athlete's

Celebrating Lucia

equipment, competition, travel and lodging for the 1990 calender year. Athletes generally compete in local, regional and statewide events such as aquatics, basketball, bowling, softball, skiing and skating.

"We're delighted to provide this program to Monterey County," Special Olympics Executive Director Karen Fulton said. "From our initial introduction of 'Sponsor An Athlete' we feel we've created a fun — and cost effective — method in which sponsors can participate with our athletes and most importantly, establish a personal relationship with the athlete."

Information on this program can be obtained by calling the Monterey County Special Olympics office at 373-1972.

LOCAL AMERICAN LUNG ASSOCIATION OFFERS FREE "LIVING BETTER WITH LUNG DISEASE GIFT PACK"

In recognition of California's Lung Awareness Month, celebrated each December since 1978, the American Lung Association of Monterey, Santa Cruz, and San Luis Obispo Counties are offering a free "Living Better with Lung Disease Gift Pack."

It's a collection of pamphlets which provide tips on how to better cope with emphysema and other chronic lung diseases. Included are brochures entitled: "Safe Flying for Patients with Lung Disease," "Sexuality and Chronic Breathing Problems," "Breathe Easy Relaxation Tips and 10 Tips for Lung Health."

June DeSena Perryman, program director of the Monterey and Santa Cruz County Lung Association said that about 40-45 percent of all men and about 30 percent of all women over the age of 65 have a chronic breathing problem like emphysema, asthma or chronic bronchitis.

"These people are literally always thinking about their next breath," Desena Perryman said. "For them, breathing is work and a constant mental and physical preoccupation. We've put together this assortment of publications to introduce them to some concepts which may make living with lung disease a little easier."

The brochures were written by the American Lung Association of California and its medical section, the California Thoracic Society.

DeSena Perryman said the Lung Association also sponsors Better Breathers clubs which meet monthly. These clubs, open free of charge to all local chronic lung disease patients, feature presentations on medications, nutrition, exercise and other topics of interest to people with breathing problems. They are supported in part by the Annual Christmas Seal Campaign.

To order the free "Living Better with Lung Disease Gift Pack" and to find out more about the American Lung Association's services for chronic patients call 373-7306.

CARMEL'S OWN HOLIDAY PROJECT TO CHEER SENIORS, DOMESTIC VIOLENCE VICTIMS

A unique Carmel-only project is underway at nine local banks and savings and loan firms to bring Christmas cheer to lonely seniors, and to battered women and their children.

It is the Christmas Candy Cane Project, a community project sponsored by the Carmel Board of Realtors, now in its seventh successful year. All Carmel-area residents are urged to support the drive this year as generously as they have in the past.

Last year, the drive gathered several hundred gifts, some of which were distributed to seniors attending the annual Christmas dinner of the Carmel Foundation, and to women and children who sought refuge in the YWCA Emergency Shelter for Battered Women and Their Children.

The victims of domestic violence must often flee their homes on a moment's notice, unable to take anything with them — not even the barest necessities. Both lonely seniors and battered women and children would face a bleak holiday without the cheerful gifts provided by the Candy Cane Project.

Here's how it works:

Next to the Christmas trees set up by each participating firm in its lobby is a gaily decorated basket containing peppermint candy canes. Customers are asked to pick one of the canes and purchase a modest gift suggested by the tag on the cane. The gift is to be wrapped and left at the bank of S&L for pickup by the Realtors on Thursday, Dec. 21.

Gifts for seniors may include such items as household items, coffee mugs, stamps, stationery, jams and jellies. Gifts for the women and children may include toilet articles, cosmetics and toys.

The nine firms taking part in this year's drive are:

Security Pacific Bank, Carmel; Pacific Western Bank, Carmel; Great Western Savings, Carmel and Carmel Rancho; Coast Savings, Carmel, Pebble Beach, and Carmel Valley; First Interstate Bank, Carmel and Carmel Rancho.

MONTEREY PENINSULA INSURANCE AGENTS WIN TOP STATE AWARDS

During the recent state convention of the Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of California (IIABC), the organization presented its annual awards in recognition of the outstanding achievements of many of its local association members. This program is designed to expand community participation of these local groups.

The William H. Menn award, the top state award which recognizes overall excellence, was won by the Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of the Monterey Peninsula. In addition, the IIABMP also received an award of excellence for its community service.

Some of the many community events the IIABMP sponsors include:

1) The Annual Monterey Peninsula Big I Youth Golf Classic for young golfers from 12 to 17 years of age. Some 40 youngsters participated during 1989, with the seven top finishers going on to the state finals.

2) A Project Invest Class established at Monterey Peninsula College to teach the fundamentals of the insurance industry and the skills needed for a career in the business.

3) Coordination with our local police and fire departments in support of Operation Identification and Neighborhood Watch programs, Fire Prevention Week, Fire Safety Awareness during the Christmas season, and co-sponsorship of Health and Safety Day at Del Monte Center to promote a safer community.

This is the fourth straight year that the IIABMP has won the State Association's top award for its community service, and as IIABMP President Larry Durocher has stated, "We love wining these awards, but win or not, we will definitely continue to work with our youth and in support of the health and safety of our neighbors."

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Merry Christmas

From the Dec. 24, 1981
Carmel Pine Cone

Years ago I had a French professor, M. L'Abbe Jean Jacques Pelltier, who would have made an ideal dinner companion for the character in Charles Dickens' Tale of Two Cities, Madame La Farge. She knitted vigorously and joyfully as the heads of French nobles were chopped off by the efficient invention of Dr. Josef Iynoce Guillotine.

M. L'Abbe Pelltier would say, with genuine venom and obvious delight, "I forgive, but I never forget." Of course, this meant that he cherished all injuries real and imaginary. He encased them carefully in a strong box from which he brought his gems of hatred to embarass, shame and perplex his friends and foes.

We wonder how many marriages, family relations and friendships have been wrecked on the rocks of a long and mean memory. As we prepare for Christmas we should begin by digging a grave 6-feet deep and bury the box of injuries without a headstone. This is the ideal time to put into practice our blessed Lord's advice to forgive not seven times, but seventy times seven.

The Rev. Peter Marshall, the beloved Presbyterian minister and chaplain to the United States Senate during the late 1940s, wrote: "Lord, Thou hast asked me to love my neighbors and friends as I love myself. That would be a lot of loving. Lord, give me the courage to go to a friend against whom I hold a grudge and say, 'I am sorry, forgive me'."

At a kindergarten Christmas party there was a play. Four little angels held golden glittering letters which spelled out, "STAR." Unfortunately, like many of us, they came out in the stage in reverse. In this order it really doesn't spell out the Christmas message does it?

Amen.

There's only one way to come out ahead of the pack.

The Golden Years

There wasn't much interest by employers in 1976 when a seminar on hiring older workers was offered in Westchester County, just north of New York City. Twelve years later, representatives of 100 businesses turned out for a similar seminar scheduled by the county's Office for the Aging. Interest in loder workers has increased because fewer yount people are entering the work force, and employers have learned to appreciate what older workers bring to their jobs. "Employers hwo have hired colder workers see them as stable, reliable, and careful, with high morale and a strong commitment to the organization," an Office of the Ageing official says.

She credited her longevity in part to luck, a good constitution, and eating sensibly. Life's most important aspect? "It's family. One must cherish and nurture these relationships. Nothing replaces family relationships."

Battle on

THE COMBATANTS have been whittled down to four and the battle continues.

The final clash of the Fourth Annual KMBY/Music Annex Battle of the Bands gets underway at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 21 at The Club of Monterey.

The four finalists (the envelope please): The Believers, The Critical Mix, Veet and Sabre. (Order of the bands will not be determined until the night of the battle. Call The Club for details.)

The four finalists vied with five other bands to make it to the final evening. Originally the event called for the top three bands to make it to the finals, but, as these things go, two bands tied for third, and thus the four bands.

The bands will vie for the title and bragging rights and more than $7,000 in recording time at the Music Annex and equipment from Abinante's in Monterey and Union Grove Music in Santa Cruz. Winners in the past include the Young Presidents, Boys Choir and The Romp.

This year 28 bands entered the competition, presented by T.R. Culbertson and Matthew Schuss, with nine semi-finalists playing on three nights last week. This year net proceeds from the door will be donated to the Red Cross for earthquake relief.

Bands competing this year included: Rhythm Method, Veet and December from Santa Cruz, Prellor, Black Velvet and Cheap Wine from Salinas, and Sabre, Critical Mix and The Believers from Monterey.

Judges for the event include both Schuss and Culbertson, music promoter Steve Vagnini and, yours truly. It's a tough job, but somebody's got to do it.

Stars ready to 'set sail' at the Gourmet Gala

CELEBRITY CHEFS for the 1990 March of Dimes Gourmet Gala come from the worlds of entertainment, sports, business, art, philanthropy, wine and publishing.

And their recipes will be judged by some of the most prestigious names in food and wine. The event, "Gourmet Gala Sails Away," will be Jan. 20 in the San Carlos Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton.

Among the celebrities who've agreed to cook for charity are entertainment personalities Jaclyn Smith; Pat Morita and his daughter, Erin; Artie Johnson; Ruth Buzzi; John Clark Gable; Richard Lloyd; Chad McQueen; Kent Perkins; Johnnie Ray; Giselle McKenzie and Lauren Tewes.

Also donning their chef's toque for the occasion: Bill Agee, chairman and CEO, Morrison Knudsen Co., and his wife, Mary Cunningham Agee, executive director, "The Nurturing Network" and author of "Powerplay"; public relations consultant David Armanasco; Ernie Barnes, artist and former pro football player with the Denver Broncos; plastic surgeon, Dr. Roger Bartels; Peter and Barbara Blackstock. owners of Victory Toyota in Monterey; Allison Stilwell Cameron, artist and author; Daniel Durand, director of food and beverage, Royal Viking Line; Dorothy Kingsley Durney and Christine Durney Armanasco, proprietors, Durney Vineyard; Riki Ellison, San Francisco 49ers and political analyst; Sheila Ellison, publisher; Brooks and Kate Firestone, proprietors Firestone Vineyard and J. Carey Cellars; Jim Josoff, Big Sur activist; Tom Oliver, president Pebble Beach Co.; Jonathan Price, chairman, March of Dimes board of directors; Hans Skalagaard, marine artist, and his wife Mignon Diana Skalagaard; plastic surgeon Dr. Daniel Strickland; novelist Rosemary Rogers.

The celebrity judges are Bert Cutino, co-owner of the award-winning Sardine Factory in Monterey and Certified Executive Chef member of the American Academy of Chefs; Jeremiah Tower, owner and chef of Stars in San Francisco; Craig Claiborne, food editor emeritus of the New York Times and cookbook author; Betsy Balsley, food editor of the Los Angeles Times; Robert Bussinger, vice president and general maanger at the Ventana Inn in Big Sur; Vicky Sebastiani, proprietor of Viansa Winery; Henry Lapuyade, owner of Marcel et Henri Charcuterie Francaise in San Francisco; Bryan Miller, restaurant critic for the New York Times; Lois Dwan, cookbook author and former restaurant critic for the Los Angeles Times; Tim Zagat, publisher of the Zagat Restaurant and Hotel Surveys; and James Villas, food and wine editor for Town and Country Magazine and cookbook author.

Actress Elinor Donahue and her husband, producer Harry Ackerman, for many years celebrity chefs at the Gala, are serving as honorary co-chairmen. Artist Cole Weston is master of ceremonies.

"Gourmet Gala Sails Away" will be this year's theme. T. Scott Moore, theme chairman for the fifth consecutive year, says he plans for the decor to draw on the elegance and sophistication of cruise ships as portrayed in that witty Noel Coward musical, "Sail Away," or TV's "Love Boat."

The interior designers and architects who will design the kitchen environments, says Linda Lamb, head of the kitchen design committee, will be inspired by ports of call around the world. The designers include Lamb, Scott Moore, Robert Benton, Nancy McInich, Joseph Rock, Nancy Schmitz-Bowersox, Judith Lehman, Rudy Reate, Andrew M. Shafer, Charlene Matoza and Linda Williams.

Sponsors for this year's gala are Monterey Rolls Royce, Mills Distributing Co., Saks Fifth Avenue; Morse and Associates and Financial Center Mortgage; The Nunes Co. Inc.; Household Card Services; Country Home Care; elan at Pebble Beach; Stahl Motor Co.; Pebble Beach Resorts; Victory Toyota and Rykoff Sexton.

Artie Early will serve as chairman of the Gala for the fifth consecutive year.

Other committee chairmen are Kay Nunez and Bill Cater, development; Charlene Etienne, celebrities; Mark and Jennifer Lupo, hospitality; Don Ferch, Tracy and Pat Gentry and James Watson, cooking; Linda Lamb, kitchen design; Carol Benton, entertainment; Mary Alice Cerrito, invitation, reservations, printing and program; Tia Gindick, publicity; Sherrie McCullough, silent auction.

The event, which in 1989 netted $60,000 for the March of Dimes' research and services, puts an ecletic collection of celebrity cooks into 12 environments created by local interior designers and architects. During a cocktail reception provided by the peninsula's top restaurants and wineries, the cooks cook, the traditionally sell-out (at $150 per person) crowd observes, and the panel of celebrity judges judge. Dinner — the 12 celebrity recipes as prepared in larger quantities in the Monterey Sheraton kitchen — and dancing follow.

The March of Dimes, now in its 51st year, is a partnership of volunteers and professionals which has pioneered programs that include diagnosis and treatment of babies before and after birth, genetic counseling, and early and regular prenatal care to prevent birth defects.

Bach Festival names new director of development

THE CARMEL Bach Festival has announced the appointment of J.R. Fowler Jr. as director of Development and Community Relations.

Fowler was previously with Monterey's classical radio station KBOQ-FM. As staff announcer he was responsible for the nightly "Masters Concert" series, "Dinner Classics" and other programming-related tasks.

He is a graduate of the University of Kansas with a bachelor's degree in journalism; he also possesses a master's degree in public administration from Central Michigan University. A career officer in the U.S. Air Force, his assignments have taken him from Washington, D.C. to Southeast Asia to Los Angeles and spots in between. Early in his career he was responsible for audiovisual documentation and productions about Air Force operations.

Later he worked for the Secretary of the Air Force as Chief of Community Relations in the Western Regional Public Affairs office. Tom Selleck is latest celebrity to join AT&T cast

ACTOR TOM Selleck is the latest celebrity scheduled to compete in the 1990 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, which will be played on the Monterey Peninsula Jan. 29 through Feb. 4.

Selleck joins actor Michael Keaton, who stars as "Batman" in the hit movie of the same name, as celebrities who will be playing in the tournament for the first time in 1990.

Selleck, best known as private investigator Thomas Magnum in the long-running television series "Magnum, P.I.," starred in the hit film, "Three Men and a Baby." He is currently appearing in the recently released movie, "An Innocent Man."

"I think it's great we continue to get newcomers interested in playing," said Lou Russo, executive director of the tournament. "The combination of Tom Selleck and Michael Keaton, along with our returning celebrities and pro golfers, should give us some exciting golf action at the tournament this year."

Returning celebrities scheduled to compete in the 1990 tournament include Jack Lemmon, Clint Eastwood, Mark McGwire, Dan Marino, Glen Campbell, Dwight Clark, Vic Damone, Kevin Dobson, Julius Erving, and the Gatlin Brothers, among others.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

ALL DOGS GO TO HEAVEN: Animated shaggy dog story about a roguish German Shepherd (whose voice is provided by Burt Reynolds), whose love for gambling almost becomes his undoing. Rated G. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

BACK TO THE FUTURE II: Those zany time travellers Michael J. Fox and Christopher Lloyd are back in this sequel about a youth who goes back to his parents' high school days and alters the course of the future. This time he also goes forward into the future, with equally history-altering results. Directed again by Robert Zemeckis (Who Framed Roger Rabbit.) Rated PG. At the State III Cinemas. 372-4555.

THE BEAR: Amazing live-action adventure film about two bears — an orphaned cub and a wounded adult Grizzly — and their adventures in the wilds and their confrontations with human hunters, was directed by Jean-Jacques Annaud. Not a documentary, but a story told from the bear's point of view. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theater. 625-1200.

BLAZE: Features Paul Newman as charismatic former Louisiana Governor Earl Long and his much-publicized affair with stripper Blaze Starr (newcomer Lolita Davidovich) in 1959. Directed by Ron Shelton (Bull Durham). Rated R. At Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

CRIMES & MISDEMEANORS: Woody Allen's long-awaited comedy-drama stars the usual stellar cast of characters, including Woody himself, as well as Mia Farrow, Angelica Huston, Martin Landau and others, with intertwining storylines featuring Woody chasing an oblivious Farrow and Landau's problems with his mistress Huston. Rated PG-13. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

DAD: Jack Lemmon stars as a 75-year-old retiree who battles premature senility and an aloof family in this comedy-drama directed by Gary David Goldberg. Ted Danson stars as the self-involved son whose priorities suddenly shift when his father is hospitalized, and Olympia Dukakis as Lemmon's domineering wife. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

FAMILY BUSINESS: An all-star cast featuring Sean Connery, Dustin Hoffman and Matthew Broderick heads this story about a grandfather, father and son who work the family "business," in this case robbery and other crimes. Directed by Sidney Lumet. Rated R. At the State III Cinemas. 372-4555.

HARLEM NIGHTS: Directorial debut for comic superstar Eddie Murphy (who also wrote the screenplay), stars Murphy, fellow comic Richard Pryor and Danny Aiello (Do the Right Thing). Comedy takes place in Harlem during the turbulent late '20s and '30s when the Cotton Club was at its height. Rated R. At Crossroads Cinemas. 624-2792.

THE LITTLE MERMAID: Animated feature film from Disney is based on a story by Hans Christian Andersen. It's about a mermaid who wants to join the human world, but she must make some big sacrifices to do it. Rated G. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING: Kirstie Alley is the single mother, John Travolta the prospective father, and Bruce Willis is the baby's voice in this romantic comedy directed by Amy Heckerling. Gimmick is that Willis (as the baby), makes funny or cogent comments on what's going on with only the audience privy to his commentary. Rated PG-13. At the State III Cinemas. 372-4555.

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S CHRISTMAS VACATION: The accident-prone Griswold family, led by the bumbling, but well-meaning father (Chevy Chase), returns for a holiday go-around, this time they're staying home for the holidays and having the relatives over for a "nice, quiet" Christmas. Co-stars Beverly D'Angelo and Randy Quaid. Rated PG-13. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

PRANCER: Just in time for the holidays comes this live-action fantasy about a little girl who nurses a injured reindeer she believes to be one of Santa's own. Stars Cloris Leachman, Abe Vigoda, Sam Elliott, and Rebecca Harrell. Rated G. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music — "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

SEA OF LOVE: Al Pacino and Ellen Barkin star in this erotic thriller about a cop on the trail of a ruthless killer who falls for a mysterious woman who is a suspect in the killings. John Goodman (Roseanne) co-stars as Pacino's detective partner. Directed by Harold Becker (The Onion Fields). Rated R. At the Carmel Village Theater. 625-1200.

STEEL MAGNOLIAS: An all-star cast heads this feature film version of the stage comedy. Directed by Herbert Ross, the film is the story about the relationship between six Southern women and their men and stars Sally Field, Dolly Parton, Shirley MacLaine, Darryl Hannah, Olympia Dukakis and newcomer Julia Roberts (Mystic Pizza). The men in their lives include Tom Skerritt, Sam Shepard, Dylan McDermott, and Kevin J. O'Conner. Rated PG. At Golden Bough Theater. 624-4044.

THELONIOUS MONK: STRAIGHT, NO CHASER: Fascinating portrait of legendary jazz pianist and composer Thelonious Monk, with documentary footage, backstage interviews and plenty of Monk's enigmatic music. Produced by noted jazz fan Clint Eastwood. Rated PG-13. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

WAR OF THE ROSES: Kathleen Turner and Michael Douglas star as a squabbling couple whose divorce proceedings turn rather nasty in this black comedy directed by Danny DeVito, who also co-stars as a divorce attorney. Rated R. At Cinema 70. 373-4777.

WE'RE NO ANGELS: Remake of 1955 comedy about two escaped convicts posing as priests that starred Humphrey Bogart and Aldo Ray, this time with Robert DeNiro and Sean Penn in the lead roles. The two masquerade as priests in a small town monastery while conspiring to make it across the Canadian border to American soil and safety. Co-stars Demi Moore, Hoyt Axton, and Wallace Shawn. Screenplay written by David Mamet; directed by Neil Jordan. Rated PG-13. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

WHEN HARRY MET SALLY: Rob Reiner (Stand By Me, Princess Bride) directed this modern romantic comedy, which stars Billy Crystal and Meg Ryan as somewhat reluctant friends who ask the eternal question, "Can friends remain friends once they're lovers?" Co-stars Carrie Fisher and Bruno Kirby. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

THE WIZARD: Fred Savage (TV's Wonder Years), stars as a young boy who "escapes" with a quiet, withdrawn friend who is a computer game whiz on a cross-country trip with the ultimate goal of entering a Nintendo competition with a huge cash prize. They join up with a sassy, street-smart girl along the way, with their parents and a bounty hunter on their trail. Rated PG. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

Time travellers

DOC BROWN (Christopher Lloyd), and Marty McFly watch as their plans go awry in the year 2015 in Back to the Future II, in which the two travel to the future as they did in the past in the original, with equally history-altering results. Directed by Robert Zemeckis (Who Framed Roger Rabbit), the film continues at the State III Cinemas in Monterey. Call 372-4555 for showtimes.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Winter light

MAY YOU KNOW holiday joys. Winter's official start (12/21) introduces the season of warmth sought and fern-fresh contemplation found. Could it be true that every homeless woman's journey has Marylight therein? You bet. We need all the help we can get, Godhead knows. There are no losses to cut or count, for nothing of value ever goes away.

WHILE DOWNTOWN Santa Cruz works toward post-earthquake recovery, Kuumbwa Jazz Center's leadership signals firm faith. Scheduling released by Development Director Judith Broadhurst shows today that the facility will continue booking talent of high quality.

Right now, Kuumbwa staffers and volunteers enjoy their annual break. The next show (1/8) will spotlight a knockout group headed up by trombonists Steve Turre and Robin Eubanks. Kei Akagi (piano), Tommy Campbell (drums), Charnett Moffett (bass).

Then it's the Louis Hayes Quintet (1/15). The superb drummer travels with Charles Tolliver (trumpet), Gary Bartz (saxes), Ronnie Matthews (piano), Clint Houston (bass).

Genius tenorman Joe Henderson comes in next (1/22). Backup crew TBA.

Pianist Art Lande has signed on too (1/29). His bunch includes reedman Paul McCandless of the band Oregon along with trombonist Wayne Wallace, Bill Douglas (bass), Eddie Marshall (drums).

February's headliners: Drummer Paul Motian fronting a trio, vocalist Sheila Jordan with Harvie Swartz on bass, Astrud Gilberto. More on each presentation as each draws near.

Judith says the second annual Carnaval Santa Cruz (benefit for Kuumbwa and Tandy Beal Dance Company) will happen April 6-7. Kuumbwa's Jazz Auction will occur during May.

On quite another hand. When the Central Park jogger was raped and beaten, her young attackers labeled their brutal acts this way: wilding. The rawness of urban ratpacks on such runs was brought to Kuumbwa by guitarist James Blood Ulmer, drummer Calvin Weston, Jamaladeen Tacuma on electric bass. Heavy metal buffs dug the aggression and literally unbearable sound level. Hearing no beauty at all in the trio's first four non-tunes, I joined other walkaways.

Ulmer roomed with Ornette Coleman and studied that man's freeform "harmolodics." The guitar was tuned for some haunting peripheral effects (chordal aftertaste) but these usually were obliterated by volume settings. Some of Ornette's writing shows real compassion for the human condition. To my ear, Ulmer's single long set celebrated cruelty and cynicism. His manager said he does not record with this configuration.

RADIO DAYS: KAZU-FM in Pacific Grove invites queries from folks who'd like doing jazz shows at the community outlet. Program Director Susan Dobkin says she has two weekly slots open right now. Dial 375-7275 and ask for Susan or Operations Director Ace Lopez.

• KAZU jazz broadcaster Jim Bourne put together that excellent series on big bands. Now Jim's letter reports that he may showcase songwriters — Harold Arlen, Jerome Kern, Matt Dennis, so on. My vote: definite aye.

• Sad quote from Pat Henry, who founded KJAZ in 1959 and sold it 21 years later. "I think that KJAZ is the end of the line for commercial bebop radio. Excepting college radio, I fear for the format's continuance. It's the only hobby more costly than owning a string of polo ponies."

• KUSP-FM of Santa Cruz slates a Sunday Night Special on New Year's Eve (9-11). Blues guitarist Ronnie Earl, recorded live by the station remote crew in September at O.T.'s. Ronnie "sizzled during the first set," says a program note, and "enjoyed himself so much that he played an extra-long second set with numerous special guests onstage."

• KUSP's Pete Fallico kindly sent along cassettes of his brilliant two-hour special on the late Eddie Jefferson, my favorite male jazz vocalist. Sure would be fine if he'd air it again for those who missed the first time — with plenty of notice beforehand.

vocalist Claudia Gomez. Then she brought her Brazilian bag into Monterey Bay Club and pulled out delightful sets.

Ken listened at a front table as Miss Gomez got strong support from veteran Anglo players out of San Francisco's Latin music community: Jeff Buenz on lead guitar, percussionist Dennis Broughton, David Belove (electric bass), David Rokeach (traps). Claudia's rhythm guitar completed the bright sound.

Especially notable were her strength and range. Not for Claudia the fetching, relatively small voice that calls up one's protective instincts (Astrud Gilberto and the much more recent, one-name Brazilian stylists Kenia and Simone). Miss Gomez has that smoky, pensive sound when she wishes — and the empowered projection that communicates personal clarity plus deep joy. She could be one helluva blues singer — and I say so as a flat-out compliment.

Claudia's own song intros explained the extra voltage: she was born in Colombia and came under Caribbean musical influences. "My Spanish is better than my Brazilian Portuguese." One celebrative and beautiful tune was adapted from Afro-Columbian folk material.

This item's on her new cassette (Arete Records) — along with originals and compositions by such Brazilian adepts as Horta, Donato, Dori Caymmi. Interestingly, KJAZ taped her live at Kimball's for producer Bud Spangler's Sunday night series, then turned over the masters. The pleasing package costs $10 and may be ordered directly from the artist: Claudia Gomez — PO box 52063 — Palo Alto 94303.

Brazilian linkage? She seemed influenced as well by late superstar Elis Regina and confirmed the point readily — with a wide smile, in fact — between sets.

Good times at Monterey Bay Club on Thursday night (12/21) with fine young singer Kitty Margolis, Dick Hindman at the piano, Vince Lateano on drums, bassist John Wiitala. Otherwise: R&B tenorman Terry Hanck and his Soulrockers (12/22-23), closed (12/24-25), Jack and Ed Show (12/26), Rob Lautz on vibes and guitarist Tom Bockhold (12/27), Ken Arconti's blues unit (12/29-30). On New Year's Eve, Roger Eddy will front his Mini Big Band — $10 cover.

KSBW-TV schedules something fine on Christmas Eve (10-11). The feed from NBC will bring Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater into area homes. Ailey loved jazz and fused the music with breakthrough choreography; he died on this month's first day of a rare blood disease at age 58.

Bill Cosby will host the special. It features troupe members performing dances created by Ailey, songs from Roberta Flack, a filmed interview with the late gentleman.

Ailey's masterpieces include celebrations of Duke Elllington and a powerful blues suite. Hymns also were important to his designs.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $15 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

Intriguing programming

CONCLUDING three weekends of December "Music-of-the-Season" choral endeavors, the Camerata Singers of Monterey County under the direction of Dr. Vahe Aslanian, performed Saturday night in the Carmel Mission Basilica.

There is no doubt that for unusual, intriguing programming they took full honors. Dr. Aslanian chose to concentrate his interest on three composers of the late Italian Baroque, a period which has fallen into musical neglect these days. We know the German Baroque quite thoroughly. The French Baroque is close behind and the English Baroque, in the work of Handel, is ubiquitous this time of year.

The concert began with the "Invitatorio per la notte del S.S. Natale" by Francesco Feo. He was an exact contemporary of J.S. Bach, but Feo was known more for his operatic composing than for his church music. Employing a quartet of vocal soloists, full chorus and orchestra, it was revealed as pleasant, but not particularly distinguished or memorable music.

Soprano Annalise Winberg has a large voice which she does not have complete control over. Alto Cathy Findley sounded warm and confident in her aria. Tenor Gene Albin did well and bass Roy Stevens needs to center his pitches and articulate more clearly, but the voice has a rich deep quality. The chorus and orchestra were well prepared, providing continuity and mobility to the music. The choral "Hodie" was delivered with a quietly happy grace that expressed the mood of the season.

The orchestra was featured in the Corelli "Concerto Grosso in G Minor" op. 6 no. 8, called the "Christmas Concerto" because of its "Pastorale" finale. Corelli is considered to be the inaugurator of the late Baroque period. A string concertino consisting of violinists Vernon Brown and Sharon Jones and cellist Karen Andrie were the very satisfactory and capable soloists. The orchestra played with warm tone and rhythmic cohesion.

The major work of the evening, which came from the Neaopoitan School, was the "Mass in F Major" by Leonardo Leo, a contemporary of both Feo and Bach. Leo's reputation as a composer of comic operas was international, but his Masses, while infrequently programmed now, are not completely forgotten and with good reason. The "F Major Mass" is well worthy of repetition. It has great melodic appeal and is imaginative and well constructed.

The first "Kyrie" was sung and played very solidly. The orchestral writing is excellently integrated into the fabric of the work, adding color and a fine foundation for the singing. When the vocal fugue began to sag, the orchestra picked up the tempo and the chorus adjusted its response. Soprano Gail MacGowan, a local girl making good, was outstanding in the "Christe Eleison," leading the soloists in making noble sounds. There was drama and color in the singing.

The "Gloria," led by the trumpets, was fine, lively music and the chorus imitated the orchestral tone very well. The alto practically danced as they marked the rhythm of their singing. True to his operatic background, the composer gave his protagonists lovely music, full of grace and charm. For the most part, only the text kept it in church. Also if not for the choral sections, which are not found in the operas of the day, the arias could just as easily have been heard in the theater.

But what is most noteworthy about this delightful work, is that in a respectable performance, the audience was given the experience of a musical discovery and for this they may thank Dr. Aslanian, the Camerata Singers, the orchestra and the five vocal soloists.

Frankie & Johnny in the Claire de Lune

The GroveMont Theater has opened its 1989-90 season with Tarence McNally's Frankie and Johnny in the Claire de Lune.

Final performances are set 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 21-23. Cafe seating opens one hour before showtime with a variety of sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission.

Directed by GroveMont resident director Sid Cato, the production features a two-person cast: GroveMont's artist-in-residence John Rousseau and Monterey actress Kathy Deskin-Jacobs.

The production is a humorous and romantic love story that "intertwines classical music, the dread of loneliness, the fear of commitment, and the need to hold and be held into a beautiful and unforgettable chronicle in these alienated times," says local dramatist Dan Gotch.

Due to strong language and some nudity, the production has been rated R by the management and no children will be allowed. Tickets are $8.50 general admission; $7 for students, seniors and military Thursdays; $9.50 and $8 Fridays and Saturdays, and can be obtained by calling Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. TRUE CONFESSIONS is one of the paintings in Will Bullas' solo exhibition continuing at the New Masters Gallery on Sixth Avenue near San Carlos Street in Carmel-by-the-Sea. The one-man show features a variety of animal paintings and genre works by the Carmel artist. For details call 625-1511.

New paintings by Carmel artist Bullas featured at New Masters

NEW PAINTINGS by Carmel artist Will Bullas will be displayed at New Masters Gallery on Sixth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Bullas has been painting almost all of his life. He was raised in the Southwest and attended Arizona State University as a fine arts major. His formal art education was completed at the Brooks Institute of Fine art, Santa Barbara.

After working with media like oils and acrylics he finally found that watercolor was best suited for his talents. He describes himself as "an anxious artist" — he likes to work fast looking forward to the finished painting.

He begins with rough sketches and with larger works, color layouts, but generally, his work evolves from beginning to end on the same watercolor board. He uses a broad range of colors and many unusual masking and lifting techniques that make his handling of watercolor unique.

Much of Bullas' work deals with the animal kingdom — from large game to barnyard subjects. His recent interest in the human form has inspired paintings depicting cowboys, Indians, pirates and occasionally a figure from mythology. He enjoys the historical references and accounts of the old west or days on the high seas.

His titles play an important role in his work. Many are humerous and with the more serious works, the titles aid the story-telling.

His talents have earned him significant awards including the Strathmore Award and the Mario Cooper Award (President's Award) from the American Water Color Society. A member of the contributions of fine art by the Knickerbocker Artists of New York and elected to membership in 1986.

Bullas will be present at the New Masters Gallery on Saturday, Dec. 9 during the 4 to 7 p.m. reception marking the formal opening of his one-man show that continues throughout the month.

For additional information, call 625-1511.

Trager's watercolors exhibited

Helen G. Trager is the featured artist for the month of January at the Carmel Foundation. Her works can be viewed in the gallery located at the foundation, Lincoln and Eighth, Carmel.

A native New Yorker, Trager has served in various educational institutions in the United States and Asia as teacher, researcher and consultant. She has taught at Vassar, Brooklyn and Barnard colleges and directed research for the Bureau for Intercultural Education and the Bank Street College of Education.

During 1951-53, she was a visiting professor at the University of Rangoon, Burma, and in 1959 she served as U.S. Consultant on Education to the then Royal Government of Afghanistan. In 1961-63 she was associate director, University Division of the Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. At the end of that assignment she "retired" with her husband to live in South Salem, N.Y.

Since moving to Carmel in 1982, Trager launched a new career — painting.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffaloes." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Park for free in Monterey

The City of Monterey has removed the one-hour parking meters from the first floor of the West Custom House Garage located at Tyler and Del Monte streets downtown. The first floor has been converted to a free one-hour maximum time limit, with the exception of two 24-minute and one handicapped space.

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.
